On the retirement of Dr. William Hodgson Ellis from the Deanship of the Faculty of Applied Science and the Chair of Chemical Engineering in the University of Toronto the Board of Governors desire to give expression to their high appreciation of the work that he has done for this University. A graduate of this University he has served his Alma Mater with high distinction for an unusually long period. First as a professor in the School of Practical Science and the Faculty of Medicine, then in the Faculty of Applied Science and finally as Dean he carried with him the scientific spirit and cultured mind which are the finest fruit of humane education. Without guile and without reproach he was beloved by all and exercised a remarkable and disinterested judgment. He crowned a life of unselfish devotion by accepting on the death of Dr. Galbraith at the outbreak of the war the duties of the Deanship when he was on the point of retiring, and during all the trying period he carried the heavy burden until the victory made it possible for the University to secure a successor. Into his retirement Dr. Ellis will be followed by the affection and admiration of students and colleagues.
